

THRIVE GEORGETOWN

*Smart Planning
For a Better Future*

We all want to see Georgetown thrive.

Whether you live, work, or play in Georgetown County, seeing this community flourish and grow is important. Thrive Georgetown is a coalition of community planning advocates coming together with the goal of leading smart, equitable, and sustainable growth.

Through collaboration, including deep knowledge of coastal South Carolina and science-based research and data, we can work together to advance the new county zoning ordinances and smartly and intentionally plan for a future Georgetown that thrives.

Sustainable growth recognizes and considers the balance between population growth – which is inevitable given the attractive weather, quality of life, and economic promise of our region – and environmental impacts.

Smart development calls for zoning ordinances that protect our natural and cultural resources while providing quality, low-impact housing options for our critical workforce at the same time.

The recently passed Georgetown County Comprehensive Plan Land Use Element can be an important tool for collaborating on ordinances that balance development with nature preservation.

Let's work together.

Using comprehensive studies and ideas from reliable sources from across the economic and social spectrums, we can set the stage for sustainable development in Georgetown County as a model for others to follow.

LEARN MORE

Partners include the South Carolina Environmental Law Project, the Coastal Conservation League, Frances P. Bunnelle Foundation, Pawleys Island Litchfield Business Association, and other community leaders.